MARVEL READERS PRESENT

Dear Terry and Mark,

Interpretation: Filtered through another's perspective, we may perceive something familiar in a very different manner. This is not necessarily twisting something as much as personally invigorating it. If the source material is an inviting creation, interpretation can actually improve it. This is what happened with Wolverine.

The past couple of serials in MARVEL COMICS PRESENTS have been extremely inviting—personal visions (by Smith and David/Kieth) which encourage the reader to take a new view of a familiar character. I think they've breathed new life into Logan. Much as with the Batman, interpretations add to the dimension of the character. I see much the same being attempted in PUNISHER WAR ZONE (free plug!).

In any event, Tim Truman's interpretation of our clawed hero offers yet another inviting perspective. Wolverine as an 18th Century-like hunter? Interesting. Todd Foxx is an unfamiliar name, but he appears to come from the Truman school of art—making wilderness as crucial as character. Has a new superstar arrived? Though the story's just begun, it looks like another potent invitation to readers—illustrating that there's more to Logan than the clichéd "Snikt!" I encourage you to pursue more interpretations of our hero from comics' top talents. Wolverine and Ghost Rider may attract readers, but stories like this keep them coming back.

"HAUNTINGS"

Most of the time, Wolverine is a hunter. But in his sleep, he is the prey—hunted by Night-mare!

Plot — ROB LIEFELD
Script — HOWARD MACKIE
Penciler — JIM VALENTINO
Inker — BUD LA ROSA
Letterer — MICHAEL HIGGINS
Colorist — DANA MORESHEAD

"RAZER'S EDGE"

Caught in Arcade's Murderworld—with Heather Hudson's life at stake—Puck fights to keep Razer from raging out of control!

Plot — PAULA FOYE/RAZ MESINA
Scripter — PAULA FOYE
Penciler — JOE MADUREIRA
Inker — JOE RUBINSTEIN
Letterer — DAVE SHARPE
Colorist — FREDDY MENDEZ

Dear Terry and Crew,

Wolverine: So, you got Tim Truman to write a Wolverine tale. I'm impressed. He seems to have a hold on the character so far, but it's still early. As for the art, I'll reserve judgement until I see a little more. But what I've seen so far isn't bad. 2 1/2 Claws.

Nova: She looked pretty nice. The aliens were ugly, but what the hey, they're aliens! 2 Claws.

Ghost Rider: I'm sorry, guys, but the art isn't up to par. I just wish you had gotten Sam Kieth or Mark Texeira, or even Todd McFarlane, to draw it. Oh well... Howard Mackie's story is so-so.

Daredevil: The highlight of the issue!!! I'm not a big Daredevil fan. I think he's a stale character. But then this tale comes along and breathes new life into him. It was a beautiful piece of writing. The humor was perfect. Thanks, Mr. Slott. Take a bow! 3 Claws.

Sam Kieth's cover was excellent, as usual. 3 Claws.

Dear Terry:

As much as I enjoyed Sam Kieth's stylish artwork and Peter David's fine writing in "Blood Hungry," Truman and Foxx's "Wild Frontier" is a breath of fresh air!!! It was a blast to see Logan romping around the woods in plain clothes. I love the dialogue, "Just like I thought... a twinkly." I've admired Foxx's intelligent and exciting layouts a while back on such titles as Racer X, but this time he's outdoing himself.

The final splash page was worth the price of the book! Realistically written and drawn, and in his own environment, this is Wolverine at his best! Two closing questions: Can we expect to see Truman and Foxx working on any other Marvel titles together, or are they already?

They aren't currently scheduled to work on anything else for Marvel right now, William. But with fan support like this, how can they leave?

Dear MCP:

Status Report #93:

Wolverine: This is my kind of serial. Logan heads back to where he feels most at home—the wilderness of Canada. And while he's on "vacation," he takes a trip down memory lane. I love tales of Wolvie's past, and I think this one is going to be great. Mr. Truman is unfamiliar to me, but he seems to be a good storyteller. Mr. Foxx and Mr. Kwapisz are of average quality, but the story more than made up for it. 2 1/2 Claws!

Nova: I've always wanted to know more about her, and how she feels when she has to condemn a race of beings to death because of Galactus' insatiable appetite. And in this serial, we see that she is trying to redeem herself for some of the destruction she's assisted in causing. Ms. Kennedy seems to be a perfect choice as a writer, and Mr. Curtis is doing quality work as artist. I am really looking forward to this serial. 2 Claws!

Ghost Rider/Cable: Howard, Guang, Bud, Janice and Freddy—great job, everyone! I can't get enough of this serial! 6 Claws! Yes, that's right, 6 Claws!

Daredevil/Black Widow: The worst of the bunch. Very simple plot. Very average art. 1 very single Claw!

Front cover: Okay, but kind of blah! 2 Claws!

Back cover: Very sloppy. Sam. Definitely not your best. 1 1/2 Claws!

Dear Terry,

Never do I believe I have seen Logan look so much like his namesake than on page eight of MARVEL COMICS PRESENTS #93. I very much enjoy the feeling of movement that Todd Foxx portrays within this story. It's great to see a local boy make it big.

As of yet, I may never have visited as rugged a place as the Eastern Rockies, but I live in a rural enough area to know what Tim Truman is talking about. Page five especially touched me, since a few months ago my county chose to kill, instead of relocate, beavers who were considered a "nuisance."

I must say, I was very surprised by the high quality of this book. See ya.

Dear Terry,

I'd just like to say that this is the finest comic I've ever read! During this dreaded recession, I've had to cut back on some comics—but I still make sure to buy every issue of your title. The work put into this comic is worth far more than the small price!! You people are making a newer and even better name for the Marvel Comics Group, and I thank you for it!! Please print this letter, so it'll give me an even better excuse to buy multiple copies of this title. Thanks!

Boy, how can we ever turn down a request like that, Brad. But you don't have to go off and buy multiple copies of each issue—just keep reading! Thanks!
